

Panthers.

Mr. George Rockenbach tells this story about panthers.

When he was a small boy his father sent him to the neighbors to get an ax. The neighbor lived about a mile away.

He had to go through a very deep woods. All at once he looked up and saw two panthers sitting in front of him. He was very much frightened. He picked up a stone and pretended to throw it at them. But the panthers showed their teeth and made ready to spring on him. Then he put the stone down and began to yell. There was a ravine near. The panthers gave one leap and went down into the ravine. Then he went home.
